WASHINGTON (UP) — Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey hinted strongly today that he intends to resign soon from President Eisenhower's cabinet.

Rumors of Humphrey's possible resignation have been increasing since shortly after the first of the year when he invited Congress to make drastic cuts in the President's $718,000,000 budget for fiscal 1958.

Previously, Humphrey has denied such reports or remained silent.

"It is well known," he said, "that I have been in the cabinet much longer than I originally planned. But as long as I am secretary of the treasury, I will have no other interest."

"When the time comes for my resignation, it will be presented first to the president."

The secretary's aides interpreted the statement for newsmen to mean that Humphrey expects to quit his government post "in the not too distant future."

There have been reports that Humphrey should he resign, would be replaced by Under Secretary W. Randolph Burgess. The Scripps-Howard newspapers, quoting "reports from financial circles," said he will be succeeded by Robert B. Anderson of New York, former deputy secretary of defense.

Humphrey's statement was the strongest he has made to date indicating his plans to quit the cabinet. When he became Treasury Secretary on Jan. 21, 1953, it was well known that he intended to stay only two years.

However, Humphrey proved himself invaluable to Eisenhower on financial matters and was persuaded to stay in his job far beyond his original plans.

11 Entered in Teenage Road-E-O

Eleven teenage drivers will meet at 2 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, April 28, at the Hope Airport for Teenage Road-E-O. They will demonstrate their abilities behind the wheel in a series of precision maneuvers most adults drivers would find difficult.

Successful entrants up to the performance tests Sunday afternoon, are: Larry Garrett, Larry Baber, Cary Castle, Wayne Bailey, Charles Graham, Bill Lawrence, Harold Douglas, Charles Irvin, Charles Caston, and two young ladies, Anna Whitman and Suzanne McNeill.

George Frazier, chairman of the Teenage Judging Committee, reports that L. A. Pod Porterfield, Broopers Travis Ward and Guy Downing of the Arkansas State Police, Marvin Sinyard and Bobby Porter of the Hope City Police, and James V. LaGrossa, Hope businessman, will handle the judging duties. A point system will be used with the highest scorer winning a weekend in Crossett, Arkansas, in May as the Representative from this area at the State Jaycee Road-E-O.

The public is invited to see the ending of this year's Road-E-O to decide Hope's best Teenage Driver.

Boat Overturns, Fisherman Drowns

FORREST CITY, (AP) — A boat occupied by two fishermen overturned on Lake Kethley near here late yesterday, drowning one of the men.

The body of D. F. Sampley Jr., 30, of Forrest City, was recovered last night from 10 to 12 feet of water.

Harold Taylor, 28, of Eureka Springs, Sampley's companion, said the accident occurred when Sampley turned the boat too sharply. He said he was unable to save Sampley after the latter shouted: "I don't believe I can make it."

Both men were employed by the Ben Hogan Co. on a Highway 70 construction project near here. Lake Kethley is about 1/2 mile east of Forrest City.

After all, the best way to get around a man is to hug him.

No Casualties as Tornadoes Hit

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The Shreveport Filter Center reported a tornado struck eight miles southwest of Longview, Tex., and another 35 miles southwest of Texarkana today.

The first struck at 9:55 a.m. on the outskirts of the Longview Airport, the center said, and the other a minute later.

No casualties were reported in either twister.

State Sweating Out Warnings of Tornadoes

By The Associated Press

The U. S. Weather Bureau warned again today of the possibility of tornadoes in parts of Arkansas after no twisters developed during two overnight alerts.

In midmorning the weather bureau issued this bulletin:

"Severe thunderstorms and possibly a few tornadoes are expected in an area along and 75 miles on either side of a line from Waco, Tex., to Little Rock, Ark., until 6 p.m."

The warning supplemented an earlier advisory which said that a line of severe thunderstorms might move into extreme northwest Arkansas between noon and 6 p.m. Tornadoes were not mentioned.

The forecast called for a line of thunderstorms with hail up to 1 1/2 inches in diameter and locally damaging surface winds up to 60 miles either side of a line from San Angelo, Tex., to Springfield, Mo.

The second of severe weather warnings issued last night expired at 6 a.m. today.

Part of west Arkansas spent last night under the threat of severe thunderstorms or tornadoes. The last of two severe weather alerts expired at 6 a.m. today with no Arkansas tornadoes reported.

Twisters did "rip across" the neighboring state of Oklahoma and Texas during the night. In Arkansas the U. S. Weather Bureau at Little Rock said only rain and fairly strong winds were reported in west and northwest Arkansas.

Some damage was reported in Oklahoma and Texas but none in Arkansas.

The first warning, issued at 7 p.m., affected only a portion of extreme west Arkansas. But shortly after this alert expired at 2 a.m., the weather bureau issued a more extensive warning.

"The second alert said scattered severe thunderstorms and a few tornadoes were expected to continue an eastward movement into southwest Missouri, extreme eastern Oklahoma, most of northwestern Arkansas, the western portion of southwest Arkansas and extreme northeast Texas."

The last warning was issued at 2:30 a.m. and expired 3 1/2 hours later.

Scattered light rains fell across Arkansas yesterday.

Temperatures remained about the same as earlier in the week with maximum readings including 82 degrees at Fort Smith, 80 at Pine Bluff, 77 at Flippin and Fayetteville, 76 at Blytheville and 74 at Little Rock and Walnut Ridge.

'Gangsterism Economy' Seen by McClellan

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) says Senate probes have turned up evidence of racketeering in labor and industry which could lead to "a gangsterism economy."

McClellan, chairman of the bipartisan Senate Rackets Committee, spoke last night before the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. The ANPA's 71st convention ended early in the day.

The senator said the work of his committee, after a yearlong investigation, has "barely begun."

"Racketeering is a threat to liberty," he said. "It is criminal, and it has no place in our civilized society."

"If left alone, unchecked and unrestrained, with the momentum it has already gained, we could be heading for a gangsterism economy in America. That must not occur. The responsibility rests upon all of us to prevent it."

"I believe that it can be prevented, and I have an abiding hope and faith that it will be done."

McClellan said the committee will continue its exposure of wrongdoing in both labor and management fields until Congress has enough information to "clear up the mess."

Evidence thus far, he said, has revealed a "close pattern" of graft, corruption and lies to the underworld.

"The principal area of interest to our committee . . . involves collusion between management and union officials to their mutual advantage and to the detriment of the public interest. The management will receive proper attention into investigation."

UN Willing to Try Out Canal Operation Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United States was expected to tell the U.N. Security Council today that it considers Egypt's new declaration on the Suez Canal not perfect but worth a trial.

U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge planned to report to the council on the month long U. S. Egyptian talks climaxed Wednesday when Egypt sent its canal plan to the U.N. for registration as an "international instrument."

U. S. spokesmen said the United States did not plan to propose any action to the council. They have also expressed belief that the debate would not "close the door to further talks — and the hope that it might help to narrow the gap remaining between Egypt and the major Western nations."

A U. S. source said of the Egyptian declaration:

"We're not happy with it. We don't think it's as good as it could be — but it's a lot better than what we started with. We think it ought to be given a trial."

Informants in London said Britain — the canal's biggest customer — and the United States would seek some kind of council pressure on Egypt that would pressure new negotiations and better terms.

Business to Resist Welfare Fund Probe

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's call for government supervision of employee welfare funds apparently faces more opposition from business than from organized labor.

Business organizations contended that whatever scandals have occurred have been in respect to union-operated and not to management-operated funds. The latter type, however, comprise some 50 per cent of all employee benefit funds.

The National Association of Manufacturers favors stiff regulation of union-run welfare-pension funds and union finances, but to for employer-run funds. Organized labor wants both types covered — as AFL-CIO President George Meany reiterated yesterday.

President Eisenhower, in a statement issued yesterday at Augusta, Ga., after conferring with Secretary of Labor Mitchell, urged quick congressional action on a long-pending administration proposal to supervise "union health and welfare funds."

But the administration's pending legislation he talked about would apply to both union and nonunion employee funds. So until he says otherwise the President must be presumed to mean that he, like Mitchell, favors a law requiring filing and financial disclosure covering both types of funds.

The NAM's opposition to government supervision of management-operated employee benefit plans was stated in a recent report which spoke of the red tape involved and of possible dangers of disclosing the nature of welfare-pension fund investments. It mentioned also the possibility that unions might try to get a void in running employee funds now handled entirely by employers.

Arkansan Acquitted by Court Martial

P. T. CARSON, Colo., (AP) — M. Sgt. Billy G. Short, 27, of Taylor, Ark., was acquitted last night of a charge of conspiring to commit assault.

A charge of maltreatment against Short was dismissed earlier by the military court.

Short was accused in the April 19 bombing of Pvt. Daniel Chuebrich 18, a trainee from Chicago.

The prosecution sought to prove that Short conspired with Sp. 3.C. Robert C. Parker, 23, of Zion, Ill., to beat up Chuebrich after the trainee was involved in an altercation with another soldier.

Parker and four other noncommissioned officers, accused of simple assault, were tried today.

U. S. Using All Means to End Jordan Crisis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported today using every resource of its diplomacy today to prevent the Jordanian crisis from exploding into a new Middle East war.

The possibility of American forces becoming directly involved under present circumstances was generally discounted here.

But no official could say when circumstances might change radically.

It was understood that American representatives in Middle East capitals were under instructions to emphasize to all governments there the extreme seriousness of the situation and to urge that they do nothing to "rock the boat."

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California and Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) conferred for 40 minutes with Secretary of State Dulles yesterday. It was disclosed also that Dulles and his aides had conferred by telephone with other Senate and House leaders.

Knowland told newsmen that "everyone in that area of the world would be well advised not to rock the boat."

"The situation is serious from the point of view of development," Knowland said. Up until this moment there is no armed intervention, no involvement of forces outside of the country, in a military sense. We will have to wait and see what happens."

Asked whether the President's Middle Eastern policy of using American forces if necessary to protect nations in that area against open Communist aggression would apply in the case of Jordan, Knowland said, "It depends on what conditions arise."

"If there should be outside intervention by the Soviet Union it most certainly would apply," he said. "It might apply under either circumstances too."

United Press Correspondent Joe Morris reported from Amman that King Hussein appeared to have the situation under control, with local troops patrolling the streets and armored cars and tanks stationed at strategic intersections.

Beirut dispatches said "several hundred" persons had been arrested for anti-government and anti-Western actions. Egypt's Middle East News Agency said "assassinated" and that a number of political leaders were arrested.

small operator becomes less and less important. But what interests many of us most in the rise of the white-collar class are the human aspects. It means, for example: The typical American no longer works outdoors.

Instead of a lean-bronzed figure with calloused hands he will be a prisoner of a paycheck who can't even tell you how many faucets there are on a milk cow.

Instead of learning the ways of nature first hand he will read about them in books written by a career naturalist.

His music will no longer be true singing bird on the bough; more and more his music will come canned—like his meals.

Instead of feeling the twinges of rheumatism from years of work in the rain and the cold, he will go to his doctor to be treated for the hosts of gray, twilight illnesses that civilization brings—the nameless diseases and inexplicable fatigue that comes to people who dwell in much indoors, and who forget why the Lord put muscles in their bodies.

This new typical American will labor less, eat better, live longer than his father.

And many and many a morning as he slips his necktie—the noose-like symbol of his bondage—beneath his shining white collar, he will look at himself in the mirror and ask:

"What am I missing in life?" Perhaps his granddaddy, who would be sitting by his fireplace if he only had a fireplace, could tell him.

Former Welfare Workers Return

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Shirley Halsty, a former state Welfare Department employee, will return May 1 as the department's director of medical services. Welfare Commission Carl Adams said yesterday that Halsty will direct a new program which starts July 1 when two million dollars in state and federal funds will be available to provide treatment for indigent patients at the University Medical Center here. Halsty is a native of Arkansas who was a field supervisor for the department from 1939 to 1950, when he left to join the Tennessee Welfare Department as director of field services. ## No Drinking in Frat Houses, UA Board Says

FAYETTEVILLE (AP)—A conflict over campus social regulations at the University of Arkansas appears to be on the way to a harmonious settlement.

The controversy has caused these developments:

1. After publication of a campus survey showing that many students thought social rules too strict, the Student Senate voted Wednesday to permit drinking in fraternities. It also voted to permit entertainment of members of the opposite sex in apartments and dormitories except for freshmen women.

2. Yesterday at Little Rock, the university Board of Trustees tightened the regulations again and chided the Faculty Senate for letting the Student Senate relax the rules. It asked for recommendations from both groups by May 11, the next board meeting date, and said that until then the old rules "shall be in full force."

3. Shortly after the board issued its statement, David Minton of Pine Bluff, president of the Student Senate, released a statement at Fayetteville saying that his group felt the public may have misinterpreted the relaxation of the rules.

Minton's statement last night students and the administration of the University. Their action was taken with the well-being of the university in mind and with a sincere feeling of responsibility towards all concerned.

"However, we realize that the Board of Trustees is the ultimate authority over the university, and the body ultimately responsible for the well-being of the students. Therefore, with this in mind, the Student Senate is looking forward to working with the Faculty Senate in an effort to present to the Board of Trustees a completely acceptable set of social standards."

In other developments connected with the university, the Board of Trustees yesterday awarded a $618,000 contract to B. Sweetser Construction Co. of Fayetteville for building five apartment houses for married students.

At Fayetteville, a Benton law student yesterday was elected president of the University student body.

John A. (Jack) Davis III, a Korean War veteran, will succeed Dean Brown, also of Benton, next fall.

John Kenneth Bowen of Mena was elected vice president; Bonnie Privitsky of Stuttgart, secretary; and Dale P. Jones of Mena, treasurer.

Other officers elected were William C. Lyon of El Dorado, president of the senior class, and Joe Neva Knight of De Queen, secretary to the senior class.

Dean D. W. Halladay announced yesterday that a regulation requiring registration of firearms by University students will not take effect until the fall term.

The rule was passed by the Student Senate Tuesday.

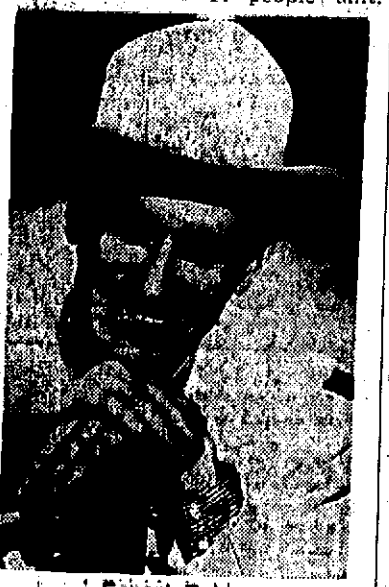

Halladay said the delay was necessary because of extensive plans required. He said such a regulation is not unusual for an institution, such as Arkansas, where some students hunt and keep firearms.

expects welfare rolls this summer to show less of a drop than in previous hot weather months because of high water and the soil bank program.

He said seasonal workers were being cut out of jobs because heavy rains have delayed farm work this year. And even when farm work picks up again, he said, the soil bank program probably will keep the reduction from being as large as in previous years.

Pork, Poultry Best Bets in Market Buys

By The Associated Press

Housewives shopping around for bargains at the meat counter this week will find good buys in pork and poultry.

Those are the two meat items most frequently featured by the big food chains for thrifty-conscious buyers this week-end.

Chickens, ready for frying or broiling are probably the outstanding buys. Price cuts from last week range from two cents a pound in some areas to as much as 10 cents at others.

Pork loin is also attractively priced in many cities, and you'll find a occasional special in leg or shoulder of pork.

Beef prices continue to inch higher. To immediate downtown is in sight. Prices of the cheaper cuts are going up faster than those of the choicer grades.

Shrimp steak is up a penny or two a pound from last week in some cities; rib roast is up anywhere from 2 to 6 cents a pound. Lamb prices are pretty close to last week's levels.

Butter prices are up a shade; eggs generally a little lower. Fresh vegetables of many kinds are in plentiful supply this week. You'll find a wide assortment of greens and other vegetables of the bargain to choose from in salad "grocery" trays—iceberg and Romaine lettuce from the southwest; new green cabbage from Georgia and Florida; spinach, kale, broccoli and turnip tops from North Carolina and Virginia.

Potatoes are listed as excellent buys in many parts of the country.

NEW LOOK LITTLE ROCK (UP)—A modernistic new look for the downtown section of Arkansas's capital city has been launched — on the drawing boards at least.

A group of architects representing the Arkansas chapter of the American Institute of Architects is drawing plans to be presented at the National Citizens Planning conference here in June.

The group says the idea is to design a business district attractive enough to get residents downtown instead of shopping in suburban areas.

About 60 per cent of the band instruments sold in the United States are for use by school-age children.

WHERE "OINK!" MEANS "OOPS!"—On the Ohio Turnpike, near North Olmsted, Ohio, fortunately handy snow fence made an emergency sty, complete with natural mud bath built down for New Jersey, when the driver fell asleep at the wheel about midnight. Police and motorists hunted two hours in the dark to round up all the porkers. One was killed when the truck tipped over, another when struck by a car.

Such legislation, he said, "would take care of that one problem."

McClellan's committee is to hold a closed hearing here today on labor-management abuses in the New York area.

The senator said the press has "greatly assisted" the committee inquiry through its own crusading against crime and wrongdoing.

In his prepared text, McClellan told of a case in which he said, "one union fund administrator has admitted that out of nearly one million dollars collected" from union members for their insurance program "only about one-fifth of that amount had been actually used to purchase insurance for union members."

"The rest," the text added, "had gone for such welfare expenses as flight tickets, rattle tickets, whisky and lavish entertainment, Christmas gifts and the construction of a monument to himself (the fund administrator)."

McClellan did not disclose the name of the administrator, apparently because the case has not yet been aired at public hearings.

New Storms Strike Area Near Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—Thunderstorms, high winds and hail lashed a wide section of storm-battered Texas again today, posing new flood dangers.

Gov. Price Daniel said he would ask President Eisenhower to designate the worst flood areas as eligible for federal disaster relief.

Thunderstorms rumbled across central, north-central and north-east Texas. Hundreds of persons were evacuated when flash floods struck at Abilene and San Antonio.

Rising rivers and creeks in southeast and Texas surged at flood stages following the seventh day of torrential rains, hail and thunderstorms. Creeks and streams spilled out of their banks in West Texas in a new flood area.

A tornado and severe weather alert for the extreme northeastern part of the state expired at 6 a. m. Four twisters were sighted in the state yesterday and today.

Some 125 persons were evacuated when flood waters hit Elgin Creek and Cat's Caw Creek swirled into the Henson addition today in northwest Abilene. The water was waist deep in some homes.

The Weather Bureau said the line of thunderstorms extended from San Antonio northward to the Red River Valley.

A twister was reported 12 miles south of Wichita Falls early today in Archer County. But the Archer County sheriff's office said no tunnel was sighted. Strong winds, hail and an electrical storm battered the area. There were no reports of major damage.

DALLAS (AP)—Thunderstorms rumbled across northwest Texas today, threatening still more floods in this storm-battered state.

Gov. Price Daniel said he would ask President Eisenhower to designate the worst stricken areas for federal disaster relief.

Rising rivers and creeks in southeast and central Texas surged at flood stage after the seventh day of torrential rains, hail and thunderstorms.

Upstream rains caused the Trinity River to spill over its banks at Liberty in southeast Texas, Daniel's home town.

The Trinity was expected to reach three feet above the 27-foot flood stage today. But the water was not expected to reach residential areas or endanger roads or bridges.

U.S. weather forecaster C. H. Crookier said it was not "just a crest. There are floodwaters backed up all the way to Dallas."

Rains up to 8 inches sent the Cat's Claw and Elm creeks out of their banks northwest of Abilene. Many streets within the city ran curb deep with red muddy water.

The flat roof of the First Baptist Church at Rotan, in the same area, collapsed under the weight of 2 inches of rain water.

Rain fell in the Wichita Falls area again today. Downpours last night up to 3 inches soaked Olney, 10 miles southwest of Wichita Falls. At least 14 families were evacuated from a federal housing project. Half 1½ to 2 inches in diameter covered roads and fields south of Olney.

In 1955 the travel-serving businesses provided jobs for 33,300 Arkansians. This represents 7.8 per cent of nonfarm employment. Fully 80 per cent of our visitors enter the State by automobile. This was over nine million persons in 1956. They comprise 24 per cent of the volume of traffic on Arkansas highways.

Sunday School Lesson

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

In many churches today, especially in the larger churches, what were formerly known as Sunday schools are now called church schools. In many instances, such a school is headed by a director of religious education, often with a staff of workers and teachers, who have had better training and equipment than the average former Sunday school teacher.

Such church schools have probably effected great improvement in discipline, teaching, and in correction of the serious shortcomings and abuses that were emphasized in the recent article in a national magazine on "Our Troubled Sunday Schools."

But the expense of maintaining these means that in smaller churches Sunday schools are still much as they were, though not all by any means lacking as effective agencies of religious instruction, and builders of the church.

Church schools, too, have not invariably solved the problem of building youth into the church. It may be that my observations have been limited, though as pastor and editor I have preached in over 200 different churches, in Canada, England, the Canal Zone, and the U. S. A.

In too many instances, it has seemed to me, the church school has failed to develop the church-going habit.

The church school has tended to be a church in itself, out of which the pupil graduate, but not always into the church proper.

I think it would be agreed that a major function of an effective church school should be the building of its youth into the main life and fellowship of the church.

It is possible that in recent years much more of this has been accomplished, and the teachings and influences of the church school may be by no means lost.

I have observed instances in which some who graduated out of the school have later returned to the church, and this is likely to be particularly true as former church school pupils marry, and have families, and establish vital church relations.

Church attendance, however, is a prime essential of wholesome church life, and of the church's effectiveness as a Christian institution.

The fact that some churches are crowded with large congregations, and that most churches are filled, and often overflowed, at Christmas and Easter, by many who seldom go to church at other times, tends to obscure much of the actual situation in nonchurchgoing.

By and large, regular attendance in most churches, as I have observed it at least, is small—often very small—in relation to the membership, and even smaller in relation to the church's nonmember adherents in the community.

It is all very much changed from the conditions that some of us remember when families went to church as families.

Those days are gone, perhaps forever, but the problems of religion and of church life remain. Sunday schools that really build up in the young the knowledge of the Bible, and church schools that develop a loyalty, not just to the school, but to the church

THE STORY: Milo March, insurance investigator who is in Rome looking into a $20,000 double indemnity claim of Ana Maria Periclosa, has managed to contact Piero Rocca, the Italian detective who handled the case which may have been murder.

CHAPTER V

Rocca stared at me searching. "Signor March, what is your interest in the death of the girl?"

"She was insured by the company for which I work," I said. "If her death was accidental, they have to pay double."

"That is your company," he said. "What about you?"

"I work for them," I said. "I know very little about the case at this point. I started out with nothing to make me think that the death was not accidental except vague rumors. I must confess that every minute I'm in Rome makes me more certain that there was nothing accidental in the girl's death."

"May I ask why you think this?"

"Mostly the threats and the treatment by the police. I confess that there are also two questions I'd like answered. One, how did the girl get to the beach—and what happened to her means of transportation? Two, what happened to her clothes if she just went in for an innocent swim?"

"He nodded thoughtfully and accepted one of my cigarettes. "I investigated the death of Anna Maria Periclosa," he said. "From the beginning I was sure that she was murdered. With each step I became more certain and when the case closed I was positive. This is why I am coming to you over my superior's heads."

"Why?" I asked.

"I have been with the police since the end of the war, signore, and I am proud of it. I am aware of what this afternoon has made can be the most effective agencies in building the church of the future.

I have been wont to stress the discrepancy between church membership and Christianity; between what churches are and what churches ought to be; but there would be little Christianity in the world if it were not for the churches, and the hope of the world is in making and keeping Christian churches strong in the ministry of Christ.

you think. I hope you will not judge the Italian police by this. It is not a usual situation. What I am doing in talking to you is merely upholding a little of what I believe the police are and should be."

"I understand," I told him.

"Ah," he said. "You are an American and as such you have few rights in my country, in regard to the work you wish to do. If you persist, you may not only be held by important Italians, you may even get orders from your own Embassy. You may find yourself arrested and in jail. You may find someone trying to kill you. All of these things may happen to you—if you say out loud that one unimportant girl died because someone wished her to die."

I laughed. "Piero, I've been around a long time. You can't work in insurance cases without frequent run-ins with important people. I've been ordered out of places. I've been arrested. I've been shot at. It's a job—and I'm a stubborn man."

He smiled, his teeth flashing white in the dark face. "Milo, amico," he said. "We will work well together. I have a feeling for this. There are things which make men what they are. Many Italians were opposed to the rule of Mussolini in theory, but very few went into the underground. I was in it from the time I began to think of myself as a man. Too many good Italians thought that all they had to do was wait for Mussolini to be finished. So they waited 20 years. Today, there are still many good Italians who find themselves chained by things that happened long ago."

"We Italians," he said, "are strange people. Many of us go to Mass every morning and a Communist cell meeting every night and see nothing strange about it. Our cultural leaders sneer at America for publishing comic magazines, yet these very men have helped flood Italy with the same thing. We put our women on a pedestal, yet in the spring we see nothing wrong in helping ourselves to a small pinch. Even politics do not change certain things. The little pinch, the bold remark, under the right circumstances is the right thing. But were you to kiss a girl in public, the Good Custom Squad would arrest you and you would be fined 300 lire."

"Forty-eight cents," I said. "Might be worth it."

He sighed heavily. "Perhaps we should get to work."

"I suppose so," I admitted. "What can you tell me?"

"Not much that you don't know or have not guessed," he said. "I do not know how Anna Maria Periclosa reached Ostia. If she drove herself, then her car melted into the sand. I did not find a taxi driver who had been summoned. I was never able to find any of her clothes. Although it is not in the report, the doctor told me that she had been under the influence of drugs when she died. There was no autopsy, but if there had been I think it would have proved an overdose of drugs. I can swear to you that she had not been in the water that night and there was no water in her lungs when I saw her body—still on the beach where it was found."

"What about the rumors?"

"He shrugged. "I can tell you 20 miles, is for Valancia. Just outside of his village is the country estate of Baron Mario Gambero. For 30 years Baron Gambero has been a tax dodger, an opportunist, and the friend of the important. He was an important Fascist. During the war, he befriended many an enemy of Fascism. There are men in power today who owe their lives to him."

DOROTHY DIX

Fiance Skips Out—With Joint Savings

Dear Dorothy Dix: After going together for eight months and planning our future, Wiley and I have broken up. When we were dating, we saved our money (I saved more than he did) and had a bank account in his name. He always said if we broke up we'd divide the money, but I haven't seen any of it. Meanwhile, he has given another girl a ring.

SARA

Dear Sara: You're learning about economics the hard way. You'll have to charge this up to experience which, as everyone knows, is an expensive school. In future, put your trust in banks, not in boys.

When it's your turn to admire the girl's ring, tell her how happy it makes you to see your money put to such a good use.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Amy and I have been best friends for years. We seldom disagree, but I am taking exception to her conduct on dates. She's a very popular girl, and it seems that all she does on a date is pet. People are talking about her. If I say anything, she says I'm preaching and gets mad.

WILMA

Dear Wilma: If Amy's conduct is really as indiscreet as you'd have us to believe, the results will soon show themselves. Some people must learn the hard way. Perhaps the loss of friends (including boys) will be needed to prove the value of prudence.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a 37-year-old widow with four youngsters. I'm living common-law with a man who is disliked by my family. He and my children don't get along and his folks don't like me. He's not a good provider, and has a nasty temper.

CALLY

Dear Cally: Don't you think your children are entitled to something better than the atmosphere of hate that has built up around them—not to mention the unethical angles of

UN Hopeful Egypt Will Permit Change

By WILLIAM M. OATIS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., (AP)—Hope was held in some quarters at the U. N. today that Egypt's plan for running the Suez Canal might still be subject to some change. Other felt President Nasser had laid down his final rules for operation of the vital Middle East waterway.

Delegates generally declined on the record comment on the plan that provides complete Egyptian control over operations and toll money, but calls for arbitration of disputes.

Acting at the request of U. S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, the Security Council scheduled a session for tomorrow on the canal issue. Lodge said the council should "take note of the situation regarding passage through the Suez Canal."

A U. S. spokesman said Lodge would report on the recent Egyptian-U. S. canal talks in Cairo and that the council debate would not close the door to future private negotiations. He said the United States does not plan a resolution calling for any council action, but that the request for the meeting does mean the United States is in substantial agreement with Egypt.

THE BEST CROWD TO FOLLOW IS THE CROWD GOING TO CHURCH

There's No Evil There Except What You Carry With You

HIS DAY—Our Duty

Welcome to church!... but wait a minute. Have you bothered to invite a friend or a stranger to share the pew at your church? Someone is waiting for your invitation... a business partner... a club member... a neighbor. What sort of church member are you? Do you care enough to invite another to share its blessings with you? Do you get genuine spiritual uplift in the public worship of God's house? You are your brother's keeper. Then, you should want to invite him to God's house. You should long for an opportunity to pray with him. Strength gained through worship in God's house on Sunday fortifies us for the entire week ahead. Then, "Come Let Us Go Into The House Of The Lord." It is His day and our duty.
